

Telemarketer Harassment

Thank you for contacting the Bureau of Consumer Protection about the telemarketer "Do Not Call" list that is being considered by the Wisconsin Legislature. Currently Wisconsin does not have a Do Not Call List for telemarketers. The provision is part of the state's two year budget, which needs approval from both houses of the state Legislature and the signature of the Governor before it can become law.

Should this proposal become law, it will be a year before it goes into effect. For this reason, it is not possible for us to take names for the "Do Not Call" list at this time.

However, there will be a publicized program advising you how to get on the list once the legislation takes effect.

In the meantime, the information provided in this packet might help you deal with telemarketing calls now. If you are receiving multiple unwanted calls from telemarketers, we suggest you track them using the enclosed Telemarketer Harassment Record form.

Under federal and state law, telemarketers may only call between 8:00 a.m. and 9:00 p.m. Furthermore, they cannot call you again if you ask to be put on their "Do Not Call" list.

Send us a copy of this telephone harassment record to report violations.
